Change Management Process

Guide individuals and teams through the emotional journey of change — from initial shock to full integration — using the

WHEN TO USE

At the start of any transformation initiative (most critical). Also when introducing new processes or systems, when performance dips after a change, during Gemba walks or change audits, when adoption is slow or inconsistent, and during major organisational change.

HOW TO APPLY — STEPS

1. Stage 1 — SHOCK: Issue a clear change announcement brief. Map stakeholders with a RACI. Run a town-hall with
2. Stage 2 — DENIAL: Conduct a change impact assessment. Build a searchable FAQ knowledge base. Publish a
3. Stage 3 — FRUSTRATION: Run a pulse or sentiment survey to locate resistance. Hold structured 1:1 listening sessions.
4. Stage 4 — DEPRESSION: Activate EAP and wellbeing check-ins for struggling staff. Use the ADKAR assessment to
5. Stage 5 — EXPERIMENT: Deliver a training plan and job aids to build new skills. Launch a safe pilot or sprint. Update the
6. Stage 6 — DECISION: Set a goal template to lock in new behaviours. Launch a recognition and reinforcement plan.
7. Stage 7 — INTEGRATION: Publish a benefits realisation scorecard. Run a lessons-learned retrospective. Update

PRACTITIONER TIP

! Change is not just technical — it is human and emotional. Leaders who acknowledge emotions, communicate transparently, listen, and provide support achieve adoption. Leaders who minimise concerns and push for compliance erode trust and sustain resistance.

KEY OUTPUTS

- Stage-specific action plan matched to the change curve
- Stakeholder / RACI map and communication cadence
- Resistance log with objections and responses
- ADKAR individual assessment per team member
- Benefits realisation scorecard and lessons-learned record

HOW TO MEASURE SUCCESS

Adoption rate at 30/60/90 days; resistance level score per pulse survey; ADKAR gap closure rate; % team members at Integration stage; benefits realised vs planned
