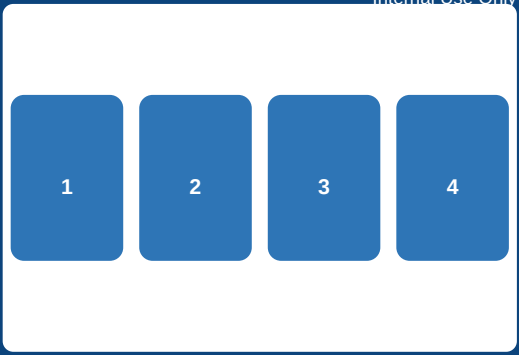
Introduction of a Standard

Follow a structured process when introducing new standards so they are genuinely understood, accepted, and followed —



WHEN TO USE

Whenever a new process, procedure, policy, or work instruction is being created and deployed.

HOW TO APPLY — STEPS

1. Involve the people who will use the standard in writing it — do not write it for them
2. Pilot the standard with a small group and capture improvements
3. Train all affected users formally with demonstration, not just document distribution
4. Display the standard prominently at the point of use
5. Verify application in practice within 30 days and capture deviations

KEY OUTPUTS

- New standard document with version number
- Pilot test results and improvements
- Training completion record
- 30-day adherence verification audit

HOW TO MEASURE SUCCESS

Standard adherence rate at 30 and 90 days; deviations or errors in the first month of deployment

PRACTITIONER TIP

! A standard issued by email and expected to be self-taught will not be followed. The medium is the message when it comes to standards.
